

Oil Painting of the Ascending Lord

The original one was placed above the Altar during the 1895-96 renovations. It was removed in 1983 and an exact copy was created by Bruce Etchison to replace the stained original.

Brass Lectern in the form of a Winged Eagle

This is the Symbol for St. John the Evangelist. It is said that the Eagle is his symbol because of the soaring majesty and inspiration of his writings as he contemplated the Divinity of Christ. The lectern was presented to Grace Church by the children of Henry and Evaline Omwake in 1910.

M.P.Moller Two-Manual Pipe Organ

Grace Church received one of the first M.P. Moller organs to be placed in any church anywhere in January 1880 for $450.00. This new organ replaced the Reed organ that had been in use. The pipe organ remained in the church and was used until it was replaced by a newer Moller instrument in 1903. The organ required extensive repairs in 1951.

A new two-manual pipe organ was installed by the M.P. Moller Company of Hagerstown MD in 1953 for $10,727.00.

Stained Glass Symbolism

The Good Shepherd Window

This is our only window with figures in it. It refers to that wonderful story told by our Lord. (John 10:11)

Above the figures, we see the Star and the Crown. The Star reminds us that The Good Shepherd's coming into the world was heralded by the light of a Brilliant Star. And the Crown reminds us of his Lordship overall.

Bunch of Grapes

These allude to the wine used in the Eucharist or Holy Communion, instituted at the Last Supper. It in turn goes back to the words of Our Lord, "I am the Fruit of the Vine." (Luke 22:18)

Wheat Sheave

Whenever we see this pictured it is to remind us of the Eucharist or Holy Communion, instituted at the Last Supper. It in turn goes back to the words of Our Lord, "I am the Bread of Life." (John 6:48)
